

Product Description

134.2KHz/125KHz rfid glass capsule tag, animal pet injectable rfid glass tube tag implant, rfid animal glass tag with syringe

The rfid glass capsule tag deliver exceptional size to performance ratios, in both low frequency (125KHz&134.2KHz) and high frequency (13.56MHz) applications. They could be embeded into custom housings and mouted on virtually any surface, such as metal, plastic, wood, paper and water, making them ideal for tracking any form of asset.

125KHz rfid glass capsule tag provide greater reading-range performace than any 125khz rfid tag of comparable size.

Features:

- ◆ Especially designed for animal identification
- ◆ Bio-compatible glass encapsulation
- ◆ Small size with long read range required
- ◆ Available anti-collision in LF and HF
- ◆ Unlimited resistance to water and chemical absorption
- ◆ High stability over fluctuating temperatures

How Does Animal Microchip Work?

1. Scan the pet to verify whether he or she has a microchip that has been previously implanted.

2. Scan the microchip pack to verify that the microchip is functional, and that the ID code matches the accompanying barcode labels.

3. Implant the microchip, then rescan the pet to verify that the microchip can be localized.

4. Do not forget to record the tracking number of the microchip.

Implantation Sites for Microchips

Microchips are most often implanted in animals as outlined in the diagrams above. When scanning dogs and cats, begin in the neck area where the microchip is most likely to be located, but be sure to scan slowly and patiently. Scan repeatedly and over the entire body to ensure whether or not a microchip can be localized.
